How many State exams do you need to pass to teach in Texas?

Answer: You must pass at least two state exams to teach in the State of Texas.

What two State exams do you need to pass to become a certified Teacher in the state of Texas?

A content exam and a Pedagogy exam (for example, EC-6 Content and PPR).

Waiving out of certification?
Check out the requirements for the Alternative Certification Program.

Can you still become certified if you do not pass the test before Intern II? Yes!!!
How I Passed My State Exam!

“"I passed my exams because I gave myself a lot of time to study and practice. I used the REA textbooks from TCED 4100 to guide my studying. From those texts books, I found my weaknesses and focused on them by making flash cards or a study sheet.”

Alexis Alaniz

“"This is how I passed my exams. I gathered information from various textbooks, websites, and notes from courses that I had taken and were related to the exams. I dedicated long hours studying the material and going over my notes. Additionally, I made flashcards, anchor charts, and foldables that helped me keep my material organized.”

Thank you

“"I passed my exams by studying several different ways. I am a visual learner so I watched YouTube videos to study processes or listen to others explain concepts in areas where I needed to refresh my memory. I also drew out diagrams and made flashcards and reviewed them often. I used the TExES prep manuals and a website called 240tutoring.com to take practice tests and make note of competencies where I needed more practice! ”
